

Art Revolution

Written by Graeme Lockhart the rules of engagement have become all too blurred the desperate, courageous don't reap their reward, out in the field where reputations are earned, where dullards and blackguards are all too easily heard, I witnessed a campaign that resulted in death, song was the victim and it drew out the breath knocked me still seething sent me off to reflect, on a tragic circumstance we'd do well to reject, free the stage for expression for art revolution, repel the invaders and confirm the impression, of a worthwhile evolution of melodic reflection, of emotional tension of genuine aggression, deny the pretenders and create the solution, a bloody revolt, art revolution,